Volume 45, Number 1 ~ January / February 2026

President's Corner

by Jen Hitt

Happy New Year from Wasatch Audubon! As I write this in mid-December, we are in the midst of the five Christmas Bird Counts our chapter sponsors. It will be interesting to see what sightings the record-breaking warm temperatures will bring. I'd like to thank everyone who took the time to join us for one or more of these counts. By volunteering your time, you have contributed to the country's longest running citizen science bird project; data from which are used in academic journals, government reports, and by National Audubon to compile population trend reports. You can view data from past Christmas Bird Counts here.

We have another great citizen science opportunity coming up. The annual Great Backyard bird count, organized by the Cornell Lab of Ornithology, Audubon, and Birds Canada will be held this year from February 13-16. Participants from all over the world join this survey. We encourage you to join, too; it can take as little as 15 minutes. Learn more about the Great Backyard Bird Count here.

We held elections at our December meeting. Dallin Henderson will serve as vice-President in 2026. Sharen Perry will continue as secretary. Jay Stretch serve as treasurer. George Muller, Lynn Carroll, and Ruth Carmona-Murray will serve another term on the Board of Directors. Thank you to everyone who has been willing to fill these roles. We really appreciate you!

We will continue our weekly bird walks and monthly field trips in 2026. See the events section of this newsletter for dates, times and locations. Birders of all abilities are encouraged to join us.

If you are looking for an opportunity to be more involved in Wasatch Audubon, we are still looking for a new program director. The program director is responsible for scheduling speakers for our membership meetings every other month. If you are interested in this position, please contact jenhitt@hotmail.com. Alternatively, if you have suggestions for speakers for an upcoming meeting, please let me know.

I think 2026 is going to be a great year for Wasatch Audubon, and I hope to spend time birding with you this year.

Officers			How Will the Utah Legislature Treat the Great Salt Lake This Year?
President	Jen Hitt	801-540-5091	by Lynn Carroll
Vice President	Dallin Henderson	801-309-7285	Great Salt Lake (GSL) approached a record-low level again in 2025, and our late start to winter doesn't bode well for 2026. However, there were some good developments recently. First, an every-decade update of Utah's State Wildlife Action Plan (UWAP) was finalized last October. "Among the wide-ranging updates," says Audubon on the website, is "a growing attention to saline lakes and the species that depend on them." New on the 2025 UWAP's list of "Species of Greatest Conservation Need" are species dependent on GSL, including the American Avocet, Wilson's Phalarope, and brine fly! Putting them on the list means that the Lake and surrounding wetlands should be protected.
Secretary	Sharen Perry	801-392-9554	Next, the Governor, other officials, business executives, and philanthropic and conservation organizations formulated and signed the Great Salt Lake 2034 Charter. It's a "pledge to restore and protect the lake for generations to come. The charter sets 2034, the year Utah will again host the Olympic and Paralympic Winter Games, as the target for reaching healthier lake levels," according to Gov. Cox's press release.
Treasurer	Jay Stretch	801-721-9432	Finally, we heard last month that the new owner of the Huntsville Abbey Farm agreed to a plan to lease 635 acre-feet of water through the GSL Watershed Enhancement Trust annually for the Lake (if approved). He'll switch less productive fields to dry farming techniques to free up the water. This can serve as a model for other farms.
Past President	John Bellmon	801-814-7544	The 2026 45-day General Session of the Utah legislature will start on January 20 and will end on March 6. Will they encourage conservation and provide more funds to achieve these plans? Or will they do more harm than good?!

About Us
The Wasatch Audubon Society is an association of people who share an interest in birds, all natural things, and Utah's varied habitats. Our goals include: educating ourselves and others about wildlife and the natural environment; enjoying the outdoors in fellowship with others who share similar values, fostering an appreciation of wildlife and understanding of ecological principles, promoting opportunities for the public to see and appreciate birds and bird habitats, and influencing public policy toward a conservation ethic. The Mountain Chickadee

I fear that they may advance plans to dam the Bear River, depriving GSL of some of its most important input. They may slight the Lake in favor of economic development, then sacrifice the North Arm to save the ecosystem in the south. That would put us at risk of dust storms from that part of the lake, not to mention eliminating any chance of pelican breeding on Gunnison Island.

Dan Strauch, who serves as the Policy Advocate for the Utah Audubon Council (WAS is a member), has been monitoring committee meetings that took place over the summer and fall. He'll be hard at work for those seven weeks, speaking for wildlife and GSL. He'll provide weekly updates, which I will email to WAS members and friends. I hope you will pay attention and respond to calls for action.

However, if you have no interest in those updates about the legislature, I can stop sending them without taking you off the mailing list for other topics. Put "No Political" in the subject line of an email to bradlynnc@comcast.net

February Meeting

Our February meeting will be held on Tuesday, February 17 at 7:00 pm. Wasatch Audubon President Jen Hitt will be presenting on eBird. She'll provide a brief tutorial and share information about how to use eBird to enhance your birding. Join us in person at the Ogden Nature Center located at 966 W 12th Street in Ogden or attend virtually via Zoom.

November Field Trip Report

by Jen Hitt

Six birders joined us for our November field trip to Antelope Island. When we started out, fog was completely blanketing the causeway, hiding any waterfowl that may have been there. As the morning progressed, the fog melted away and it turned into a beautiful day.

At Lady Finger point, we saw a sagebrush sparrow and a rock wren. Other notable birds we saw on the island were loggerhead shrikes, burrowing owls, and a great horned owl.

Membership in the Wasatch Audubon Society

by Lynn Carroll

You gave a generous donation to Audubon and you live within this chapter's zip-code area (Box Elder, Weber, Morgan and northern Davis counties). Therefore, you are a member of Wasatch Audubon Society (WAS), although you may not have realized it. Our membership has been growing fast, thanks to increased recruiting by National Audubon. We used to mail out hand-addressed welcome letters, but can't now. National recently changed how they share membership information with chapters, and I (as WAS Membership Chair) am getting email addresses for the majority of members. I hope to get them all added to my email program (MailChimp) soon. If you don't receive email from Wasatch Audubon by mid-January you can contact me at bradlynnnc@comcast.net to start getting notifications about changes of plans, action alerts, new events, and reminders. Good birding!

Dark Sky Monitoring Progress

Weber County and Ogden Valley have completed the fall monitoring event. The clear night didn't come as planned in November, but finally December 11 provided us with a sky clear enough to proceed with monitoring. Twenty-five volunteers monitored a total of 9 locations in Weber Valley and in the Ogden area. I will have some metrics to report for the next Chickadee edition. It will be interesting to see the relative darkness of different locations, but the data will be more meaningful as we continue collecting seasonally. To this end, WE NEED MORE VOLUNTEERS! If you are interested in spending minimal time on an excellent project, contact Laura Johnston at laurajohns0150@gmail.com.

Audubon Membership Application

Membership in Audubon automatically enrolls you as a member of Wasatch Audubon. When you join, you will receive four issues of Audubon magazine each year. Six issues of our chapter newsletter, The Mountain Chickadee, are on our website. To join as a new member with an introductory fee of $20, please go to the following website:

Owl Pellets

Thanks to all who collected owl pellets for me during the last school year. I was able to present my owl program in third, fourth, and fifth grade classes in three school districts.

I never have enough owl pellets, so please keep them coming. The larger barn and great horned owl pellets are best. If you know of a good location to collect them, please give me a call.

Thanks again, and happy birding!
